

EUROSTAR ADOPTS BIOMETRIC CHECK-IN ON UK-FRANCE TRAINS, EXPERTS WARN OF RISKS

Matthew Corwin told Cybernews that using biometric systems involves a privacy and cybersecurity risk for users. It can result in breaches, unconsented tracking, or even impersonation for criminal activity such as illicit border crossings.

MATTHEW CORWIN CISA, CISSP, CDPSE

Managing Director

Matthew A. Corwin has more than 20 years of experience specializing in privacy, regulatory compliance, and cybersecurity with specialized hands-on experience directing the implementation and integration of secure design principles and service engineering initiatives leveraging the latest technologies. He has a successful track record of facilitating technology-business alignment while balancing risk exposure and corporate growth. Mr. Corwin also has extensive expertise in analyzing technical architecture to attain and demonstrate best-in-class industry and regulatory standards compliance in global environments.