OVERVIEW

Gavin Cash is a drafting expert with significant experience including mechanical, electrical, architectural and tooling design. He is responsible for the drafting and coordination of security device and routing plans for new and existing projects worldwide. Since joining Guidepost, Mr. Cash has provided security design consulting to assist with Digital Realty's security migration projects. He has worked alongside a project manager, performing project management duties in addition to drafting and coordination responsibilities. During the two-year project, he has interfaced with multiple departments, led team meetings, coordinated efforts to meet deadlines, and established guidelines and standards for future migration projects.

Prior to joining Guidepost, Mr. Cash's experience includes working as a draftsman for Garland Service Company, where he created several automated drafting tools to expediate designs and minimize errors in the creation of tooling and pallets for the manufacture of printed circuit boards. He also has experience as a multi-faceted, architectural draftsman. His responsibilities included researching site regulations and codes, coordinating with structural, civil, MEP, and other consultants, designing and drafting commercial, residential, and mixed-used spaces. While employed as an architectural draftsman, Mr. Cash created and enforced several design processes to maximize efficiency, allowing for those with less experience to meet the appropriate level of production output
